

Alumni Help Find Regional Scholars

The annual search for scholars is entering its final stages.

As February comes to a close, thirteen newly separated committees composed of Mary Washington College alumni are gathering forces to prepare for the final push—the all-important interviews to determine which 25 distinguished high school seniors will enter MWC next year as Regional Scholars. These personal interviews will be conducted throughout March by the alumni committees in each region (one in each of Virginia's ten Congressional Districts and three in selected out-of-state areas), and each committee's choices for the two Regional Scholars to represent their area will be made public in early April. Those selected this year will join some 70 Regional Scholars, selected over the past three years, who are already on campus contributing significantly to the academic life at the College.

As was intended when the program was initiated in 1973, these students represent the elite of high school graduates throughout Virginia and much of the East Coast. They are nominated for the coveted $1,000 annual scholarships by their high school principal or guidance counselor on the basis of superior academic achievement, and they are considered by the College and the regional alumni committees on their potential for continued academic excellence throughout the four years of study in the liberal arts and sciences program of the College.

"The program was developed to get alumni involved in the life of the College and to attract top-notch students into our program of studies," says Program Director G. Forrest Dickinson. "And it has succeeded on both counts."

Since 1974, when the first 25 Regional Scholars were chosen by the alumni committees, the competition has grown more intense each year, and the standards for selection have been raised accordingly. That first year after an anonymous donor funded the program with a $250,000 gift, there were 226 nominees; last year there were 337. Of the 25 Regional Scholars from that first year—they are now juniors at MWC—21 were in the top 6% of their high school class; this past year, 18 were in the top 3%. (Of the Regional Scholars now on campus, ten were high school valedictorians, and another 3 were salutatorians.) And with each year, the Scholars' average College Board score has climbed—from 551 verbal and 548 math (both some 10% above the overall College average) to 600 verbal and 592 math.

"Getting top-quality students like this can't help but strengthen the academic program of the College," Dickinson says.

Other administrators and faculty members also feel strongly that the Regional Scholars are making their mark at the College. The Assistant Dean for Academic Advising, Cornelia Oliver, says the Scholars "take their work very seriously. I think they realize the College considers them a worthwhile investment, and they are conscious of their responsibility to do well." Evidence of their success, she says, is the constant appearance of Regional Scholars on the Dean's List and other records of academic achievement. "They're a great addition to the campus," she added.

FEBRUARY, 1977

But the 70 alumni who are involved on the 13 regional committees which actually interview each of the candidates and make the final decisions on who will be a regional scholar particularly feel the excitement of the program. Among other benefits, the volunteers point out that they enjoy meeting outstanding high school students, getting involved with other MWC graduates in their area, and participating in the selection of future MWC students.

One committee chairman, Ann Craig Rumsell '51 of Hopewell, Va., says that the Regional Scholarship program is "one of the finest to be found at any college." Judith Townsend Gatlin '58, of Greenville, S.C., noted that "being on a regional committee gives a renewed sense of pride in MWC, an understanding of the direction the College is currently taking, and an awareness of the role alumni can play in determining the future" of the school.

But Rose Bennett Gilbert, '60, of Maplewood, N.J., summed it up best when she said that, above all, she and her committee are "truly proud to have a part in sending MWC such good student material."

News of any Christmas messages will appear in a later column. Saw Fannie Hiter Bowie in September at the Bowling Green Baptist Church Homecoming. She looked fine and happy and is very active in this church. Her niece and nephew were visiting with her that day. I was glad to see news of Charlotte Rice Weymouth in my last news column. Office was responsible. In October, when visiting in Roanoke with my daughter, I had the privilege of a visit to Lillian Waring Edwards in Buchanan. She was fine. A niece and a friend from New Kent County were visiting for the day. I also visited Junia Graves and Jean Delaney at the Friendship Manor, a home for elderly in Roanoke. Hadn't seen Junia for 66 years. Each lives in a nice apartment in separate buildings. They both are surrounded by the things of interest to them and seem so happy and contented.

A telephone call from the Bolens in my absence. Sorry to have missed them. Phone chat with Mac Moore. Is doing fine. Driving car again. Eye operation was a success. Asked about Edna and Margaret. Lisa, the granddaughter, is a sophomore at Hermitage High in Henrico County. Elizabeth Ninde Brian enjoys her independence and apartment. Was expecting a son from Delaware to come for Thanksgiving and all would dine with another son and family in Richmond. Elizabeth asked about Elsie and Belle Lintithcum. Belle Lintithcum Masters remains in Plyler's Nursing Home. I talked with her daughter. She says that they have trained nurses with Belle who feed her and encourage her walking. She seems cheerful and now physically improved. It would be nice to remember her with cards. Virginia Saunders is fine. I had a telephone conversation with her recently and heard about her indirectly from our mutual friends. Have regretted that I have had no response to letters sent to Mannie Torbert Kelly, Louise Henley Jones, and Alva Birmingham. Trust they are not sick.

Often hear from Elsie Wood Rice and Margaret Sayre Ransone. Margaret stays very busy with her service to others. Elsie keeps in touch with Sarah Gouldman MacAllister, who keeps well, does her own housekeeping and attempts to keep up with her traveling family. Elsie's son and wife have recently been visiting a daughter, whose husband is in service in South Carolina. Elsie has been busy with a wedding and several birthday celebrations. Recently her cousin from Remington, Virginia spent a week with her. Almost envied her when she spoke of their long walks through the College campus. Elsie had visited in Remington in September. She was my representative at a workshop meeting for class agents held September 18th. She always does a fine job and I thank her. Bertha Scott Bass has been ill in St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Richmond, for the past three weeks. She is leaving today, November 27th, to stay with a friend and cannot return yet to her apartment in Imperial Plaza. We wish all success to Diana Koski in her new position and welcome Mary Carson as she assumes the duty of MWC Alumni Director.

Our sympathies go to the family of Katherine Coates Underwood '26 who passed away in June 1976.

Remember the Alumni Fund. Try to give something. We want to have a high participation of the 1915 class. Write us about yourselves and families. Plan to attend Homecoming, April 29th and 30th.

The Alumni Association was saddened to hear that Polly Eugenia Daniel Temple '35 died from a heart attack last November. Polly was married to Virginia Commonwealth University President T. Edward Temple. After graduating from Mary Washington College, Polly taught school for 16 years in Danville. She conducted a radio program for young people and lectured throughout the state on "Americanism." Polly retired several years ago after teaching American history at Thomas Jefferson High School in Richmond. We know her family, friends, former students and classmates will miss her.

News comes in rather slowly from all of you out there, and I will not fill up our space with a lot of running. Just be sure that you are planning to be at our 40th reunion next spring so that we may get news personally. I hope that you have sent the resume to MWC Alumni Office to be included in special reunion booklet.

Our sympathy goes out to Martha Epes Deane who lost by death, her husband, Edward S. Deane, on November 27. Let her hear from you in Nottaway where she is postmistress. The Alumni Office has heard from Kathryn Nebelung Bowles. She sends news that her daughter Carol Bowles Martine lives in Durham and she has two sons. She is a graduate of Lees McRae as a medical secretary. Linda Bowles Killea, her other daughter, teaches and has specialized in learning disabilities in Cleveland, Ohio. Linda graduated from University of North Carolina and received her masters from Case Western Reserve. We are sorry to announce that Kathryn's son, Robert L. Bowles was killed September, 1971. Jean Moore Basnight's husband retired on January 1, 1976 with over forty years service to Texaco Inc. In July they sold their home in Atlanta, Georgia and moved to Virginia Beach, Virginia. A letter arrived in the Alumni Office from Barbara Gaines Mann. Her daughters, Mary-Jacquelyn and Barbara F., are well established in interesting careers. One, a music technician at the Smithsonian Institution, the assistant head of the SEM laboratory. The other, has her Masters in Nutrition, is a Nutrition Consultant in Public Health, her specialty maternal and infant nutrition. As for Barbara's husband and her, they are still running two businesses - a construction company and an equipment and supply company. They manage to take a couple of interesting trips each year and right now they are looking forward to February '77 with great anticipation. Barbara and her hubby have chartered a sailing yacht with new, and will cruise the Caribbean. They have dreamed about such a vacation for years and decided it was time to do it before they get too old to enjoy it. Happy sailing, Barbara!

I received a letter from Virginia Johnson Koeller and was glad to hear from her. However, it contained bad news. Mary Wallace Huskey lost her husband with a heart attack on October 21. She is returning to Memphis where her children are. Please send news address. Virginia has been laid up with a ruptured leg muscle and had been on crutches since August 17. She is almost recovered. Her daughter is in North Carolina working and going to college. I also had a note from Miguel Gardner Livesay that she lost Bob July 10. He had a stroke 2 weeks earlier. Miguel was at MWC only 2 years and was my suitemate in Ball. This had to go to press by December 10 thus no Christmas news. The office has received a newslippage of Ensign Scott H. Kelly. Claire Moore Kelly has just pinned on the same pair of wings her husband received 32 years ago on her son Scott. Her husband, Ralph, first received his wings during World War II in which he served as a Navy carrier pilot in the Pacific. Word has been received to the Alumni Office through Eleanor Pollock (Vice President - Fund Raising) from Janice Worsley Mayberry. Janice's oldest son, Walt, received his Master of Science Degree in Electrical Engineering from Stanford University, Palo Alto, California in June, 1976. Two of her other sons and Janice went out for his graduation and all four of them toured California for about two weeks. They had a marvelous time. Upon returning Janice found Linzey, her husband, in the hospital with a flare-up with his heart, but he seems to be doing pretty well now although he's still having to take things easy. Janice's second son, Charles, is in his senior year at Western Carolina University, Cullowhee, North Carolina and Wade, son No. 3, is a Freshman at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Paul, her youngest, is a senior in high school this year and is busy as can be as President of the Student Government.

Our deepest sympathy is extended to the family and friends of Jane Shirley Brandon Nixon. Jane died quietly at her home in Bowie, Maryland on June 10, from a heart attack. The following poem is dedicated to her memory:

"Putting Out the Lamp"

Death is not extinguishing the light -
Blank darkness when the spark of life is gone;
It, rather, is an ending of the night,
A putting out the lamp at break of dawn.

Just softly putting out the little lamp
That burns within this life to light our way,
A lamp no longer needed when the dawn
Has come to usher in that brighter day.

No, death is not extinguishing the light -
No settling down of dark when life is gone;
Death is only putting out the lamp -
A lifting of the shade to greet the dawn.

Judith T. Gatlin writes that she has changed jobs and moved to Greenville, S.C. She is now directing a faculty development project at Furman University in career planning for liberal arts graduates and programs for women, funded by a Mellon Foundation grant. Interestingly enough, one of the three other new women on the faculty at Furman is also a Mary Wash graduate, Sue Olinger Shaw, 1961, who has Ph.D. from Harvard in economics and who just given birth to her fifth child.

Help - the news is SPARCE! Even a post card will do! Ann Watkins Steves and Bob announce the birth of William on October 4th child, 3rd son. Priscilla Brown Wardlaw and Charles had a fabulous trip to Europe during the summer. She also took boys for a week to Bermuda. Continues her work with her alumnae and Chris and Robb and their "social engagements" keep her on the run. The Trudeaus are fine - had lots of company during the summer and of course busily preparing for the holiday season for Excited Person Number One - Virginia. Ho! 1977 brings happiness to everyone. Edith Sheppard Ott is now doing her twelve month internship in clinical child psychology at the Virginia Treatment Center for children. Ed has served on the Distinguished Alumni Committee and currently working with the Regis Scholarship Committee. Thanks for helping Edith!

Lynne Hays Sprolows writes us that her sis Diane Hays Neuman, has written, illustrated and done the calligraphy for an informative book of Yoga, How to Get the Dragons Out of Your Temple. While it is technical and written for practical use, it is presented with a delightful tongue-in-cheek sense of humor. Diane has been a student of Yoga for 23 years and has had her own Yoga school, The Diane Neuman Fellowship, on Union Street in San Francisco for the past seven years. She is currently working on another book focusing on the application of yoga to the prevention and rehabilitation of stroke victims. Since Diane was an art major I should mention that she continues to pursue her activities in both the fine arts and crafts which were well lauded at MWC. Rose Bennett Gilbert is now writing syndicated home furnishings column for New York Daily News. She is currently working on a book about Early American decorating to be published in January '78 by Doubleday, Inc.

Joann (Jody) Close has sent Christmas greetings from Korea. She is currently employed by the U.S. Army as an Education Counselor. She is interested in helping anyone who might want to attend ECOKA University, the foremost woman's university there. If anyone is interested, they can write the Alumni Office and we will forward it to Jody.

My determination to pursue long-lost classmates led me to begin in this neck of the woods. One phone call found Betty Louise Pace Rose, who was with us on our freshman year - and who was also a Trench Hiller. Betty Louise, originally from Winchester, Ky., transferred to the University of Kentucky in '58 and graduated in 1961. She and her husband, Jim, have a farm near Shelbyville. Their two children, Jamie and Melissa, are 10 and 7, respectively. Both Betty Louise and Jim are active in community affairs and have been busy remodeling their home. The more we chatted, the more we found how close we had been but didn't know it. For instance, when Patsy Hilgartner Bruckner and I were at U.K. in 1962, Betty Louise was living in Lexington. Then, we found that Jim's brother is married to the daughter of a staff member who, before retirement, worked in the same section as I did. The clincher, however, was learning that our seats in the Rupp (basketball) Arena in Lexington are in the same section, four rows apart! As we had a basketball game on the evening of the day we talked, we saw each other for the first time in eighteen years! There's a message here - call a classmate - you can't imagine how terrific and how much fun it is to renew old friendships.

We have just heard that Kimberly Ann Poole, 12 year old daughter of Linda Lee Giles Poole, passed away November 12. Our sincere sympathies to Linda and family. Kimberly Ann will be missed by her family and friends. As we "go to press" with this news, the U.K. football team is heading for the Peach Bowl in Atlanta. The Wildcats play UNC. While under any other circumstances I'd be cheering on the Tarheels (both my sister and brother-in-law are UNC graduates), I'll be found on the Wildcat side of the field on December 31. Rabid U.K. fans snatched up the tickets two hours after the windows opened. Last we heard, three of every four tickets were in the hands of Big Blue followers. The excitement of the first Bowl trip since the 1951 season has spilled over into basketball and reservations have already been made by many Kentuckians for the NCAA finals on March 26 and 28 - and where are the finals? - Atlanta! The Rupp Arena which I referred to opened this past fall. Located in downtown Lexington, it seats 23,000 and is the largest basketball arena in the country. The arena is named for Adolph Rupp, fondly known as "the Baron of Basketball," who coached U.K. teams for 42 years before retiring in 1972. He had 42 winning seasons and produced 874 victories. This new arena goes with our new football stadium which seats 56,000. Now, tell me we're not rabid U.K. supporters!

A note from Prudie Shepard finds her the proud owner of a home as of this past summer - 3 bedrooms, 2 full baths, acres of woods, a pine grove, her own swimming hole, 2 "bouds", a rabbit, and birds. She's issued the invite! Her new address is Grays Plain Road, Sandy Hook, CT 06482. Connie, you and Andy left Louisville too soon. This past November was the coldest November since 1951, and we caught sight of our first snow before Thanksgiving. On November 29, thermometers in Frankfort registered a brisk -7°. The five inches of snow in the '75-76 winter made for quite a mild winter in central Kentucky. Generally, we have 16-20 inches. Despite our being caught off guard by this year's freezing rain and snow, I'm glad we're back to four seasons. For those of you who aren't familiar with Kentucky's weather, it can change drastically within 24 hours. But, our Springs in thoroughbred country are delightful and our Summers, beautiful.

As for yours truly, I'm still holding down my position as State Child Protective Services Specialist, but continue to have the travel bug. When you read this, I will have between December 22 and January 10, touched down in Virginia, Georgia (twice), Texas, and Oklahoma. Now that you know that Bette, Sue, and I are holding the fort down, let's hear from 'ya. Until next time, "truck 'em safe and truck 'em easy."

The office has heard from Wendy Shadwell, she and Janice Coleman visited the campus this summer. They ran into a number of familiar faces among the administration, admired the new physical education facilities, and mourned the loss of Framar Annex. They subsequently heard from Sheila Wahl that she had revisited MWC during a trip east this summer. While in Fredericksburg Wendy and Janice visited the Falmouth home of Beth Lacey Wiseman '64 and had a lovely dinner with her, her husband Bud, and their three children. They wished that they had had a chance to see Belmont, Gari Melchers' home in Falmouth, where Beth is a weekend volunteer guide. Wendy is curator of prints at the New York Historical Society. Recently she was honored by election to the Print Council of America at their annual meeting in Worcester, Massachusetts.

Cynthia Shorpe Conger has written that she and husband, Oliver, are the proud parents of four beautiful sons. They are George age 14, Andrew age 12, Trip age 9, Carter age 7. While in Miami she enjoyed seeing Janet Bagg Freisenbruch class of '64 and Priscilla Buckaway '61. Both Janet and Priscilla married Quantico Marines. Janet has since moved to the west coast of Florida. This summer Ann Carson Wray and her family visited with Cynthia at her summer home in Sea Island, Georgia. "It's really cold here in Richmond this time of year. When I led the cat out in the cold mornings I'm reminded of the icy walks from Jefferson to Seabcoack. Those cold walks and warm friendships shared over the Seabcoack stew are memories that we never outgrow. Plans made around the Seabcoack tables are now taking shape for many of our classmates."

I saw Janice Tucker at one of the VMI games at Lexington. She is in training with a major northern chemical firm in their management salesperson division. Daphne Johnston is also in management training with one of the commercial banks here in Richmond. Also in Richmond is Debbie Smith. She is working at Thalmers while getting her masters in special education. Sydney Byrd is also in school, training to be a Physical Therapist at MCV. I have also heard from Lundy Baker. It seems that she was "let go" from her FM radio station on the flimsy excuse that her voice was too cute. This type of sex discrimination is what is keeping the college woman on the bottom of most pay and promotion scales. Lundy in the meantime has been offered a position with CBS in their children's programming section. I guess a "cute voice" is an asset in that field. Let us hope that with the new government and the eventual passage of the Equal Rights Amendment that sexism will finally be a thing of the past and discrimination just a memory. That's about it from here. I have a customer coming in for a new savings account. We are selling those TV games as bonus gifts and it has really kept me busy. Thinking about all of you and hoping you are happy in whatever you are doing.

At present Janet is now working with the Treasurer's Office of the President Ford, to get a different slant on how one sees a Presidential Campaign, especially one that now has a legal spending limit. As a recent graduate of MWC, Janet is grateful to have the opportunity to work on a Presidential Campaign and particularly since political science was her major. It certainly has been a very busy and exciting 8 months for Janet.
